#Promises

#Enough

Is Jesus enough? Do we believe that in the deepest part of our heart? The Bible says God is the source of our blessing. If God is all-knowing and all powerful, can we trust Him for enough?

Next week: #War. Life is a battle. But do we battle alone? Sometimes it seems we do, but there is a host of God's army at our disposal.

Let Your Light Shine // The Heart of the Matter

All women are invited to join us February 27-28 at Emmaus Walk Christian Retreat in Mt. Calm, TX just 27 miles northeast of Waco.

Meet at the church at 5:30 pm. Our time together begins at 6:30 pm with an evening meal and devotional. Then the games commence and snacks and silliness take over as the hours grow later.

What do you need to bring? Sheets and blanket (or sleeping bag), toiletries, snacks, sodas, games and $15. Pack away your troubles, worries, and concerns for an evening of fun with your “sisters in Christ.” Our event ends at noon on Saturday.

Remember: “As we work to create light for others, we naturally light our own way.” Mary Anne Radmacher. “You’re here to be light, bringing out the God-colors in the world.” Matthew 5:14 (The Message)

Contact Sharon Corbitt for more information or directions.

JACK AND JILL:
a relationship series

Relationships can be the best and worst things in our lives. That’s why it’s worth taking time to navigate the dangerous yet enthralling terrain of relationships, from the once upon a time beginning, to the enchanted early days, to the happily never after breakups, to the fairytale endings. The reason is that, if our relationships with God don’t determine our romantic relationships, then our romantic relationships will determine our relationships with God. So let us seek to follow God in this area of life so we can avoid falling down, breaking our crowns, and causing others to come tumbling after.
