 “Look Who I Found”
 John 1:43-49

The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, “Follow me.” Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. Philip found Nathanael and said to him, “We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph.” Nathanael said to him, “Can anything good come out of Nazareth?” Philip said to him, “Come and see.” Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him and said of him, “Behold, an Israelite indeed, in whom there is no deceit!” Nathanael said to him, “How do you know me?” Jesus answered him, “Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you.” Nathanael answered him, “Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!”

Have you ever been surprised? Surprises can be quite pleasant. After a romantic stroll in the park, a man gets down on his knee, pulls out a beautiful ring, and asks his high school sweetheart, “Will you marry me?” A young wife eagerly shares big news with her unsuspecting husband: “Guess what? We are having a baby!” Surprises can also be unpleasant. Unexpected rain pours down on your much anticipated back yard party. An optimistic job seeker receives a letter of rejection after a seemingly great job interview. News of the sudden death of a loved one crushes us. All surprises are, by definition, unexpected. But not all surprises are received in the same way. People can have vastly different reactions to the same surprise. The results of the latest presidential election are in. Some celebrate. Others cry. Think of movie or restaurant reviews on the Internet. One woman’s favorite film or café is another woman’s worst thing to see or do.. Same surprise. Different responses. This dynamic is exactly what we encounter when Philip and Nathaniel, one by one, see and hear of Jesus for the first time. Through His only Son, God revealed His greatest surprise for a world in darkness: Jesus Christ, the Light of the World, has come from above to dispel the darkness. Yet we have two entirely different reactions to this news.

After calling Andrew and his brother, Simon Peter, Jesus found Philip and called HIM to be His disciple too. “Follow me!” After spending time with Jesus, Philip learned the basics about this man from Galilee and shared the good news about Him with Nathanael. We sense excitement in Philip’s words: “We have found him of whom Moses in the Law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph!” Philip speaks as if he had found a spectacular treasure and he MUST tell everyone about it. He receives the news with a joyful heart. Philip sees Jesus through the eyes of the Holy Spirit, the eyes of faith. He has literally seen the Light! What about Nathanael? Through the mouth of Philip, Nathanael hears of Jesus for the first time. But his reaction is entirely different from Philip’s. We see no excitement when Nathanael hears the good news, but rather a sense of suspicion about the Galilean Jesus: “Can anything good come out of Nazareth?” Nathanael’s response is guarded. Unlike Philip, Nathanael sees Jesus somewhere on that spectrum between disbelief and unbelief. He is literally in the dark! The Light has yet to overcome it. The question remains: Can anything good come out of Nazareth in Galilee? The odds seem to be against Galilee. The northern province of Galilee is a land too close to unclean Gentiles and too far from holy Jerusalem in Judea. No self-respecting Judean Israelite would look for the Son of God, the King of Israel, in such an unexpected place as Galilee of the Gentiles. Galilean Jews speak with strange accents and are known for a lousy report card on following Jewish laws. Why look for God’s power and wisdom in Galilee? It makes no sense! Is not the great city of Jerusalem the real center of kingly power and rabbinic wisdom? Are not God’s holy temple and priests in the holy city? Are not the learned Pharisees and scribes there, too? In short, are not the clean, pure, and righteous Israelites to be found in Jerusalem? Can God truly work out His salvation from an unlikely place such as Nazareth up north, and among such unlikely people as Galileans?

God surprises us. We OFTEN look for power and wisdom in the wrong place, in the BEST we humans have to offer, in our holiness, purity, and righteousness. Yet it is in Jesus of Nazareth, the unassuming man from Galilee, that we are called to see the power and the wisdom of God at work in our lives. We are called to fix our eyes -- not on ourselves, or people LIKE us -- but on Jesus. Not on our holiness, but on Jesus' holiness. We are reminded that we are not the light. Jesus is the Light of the World. To the surprised and perplexed, to the cautious and guarded, to those in disbelief or doubt and seeking answers, Jesus appears and invites them to fellowship with Him: "Come and you will see."

Andrew had been a disciple of John the Baptist, but then is suddenly sent by the Baptist on a different path. He must now follow Jesus. After all, John the Baptist was not the light, but came to bear witness to the Light. Andrew probably had questions about this sudden change of allegiance to Jesus from Galilee, and sought answers. So Jesus asked him, "What are you seeking?" And Andrew, along with another one of John's former disciples, responded: "Rabbi...where are you staying?" Then, we hear Jesus' wonderful invitation to these seekers: "Come and you will see!" Look who I found! Later, Jesus extends the same invitation to Nathanael. But Jesus here speaks His words of invitation through Philip, whom He had just called to follow Him. Nathanael's famous words, "Can anything good come out Nazareth?" are met with Philip's call to meet Jesus: "Come and SEE!" Look who I found! Any lingering questions and doubts Nathanael may have had about the man from Galilee eventually come to an end when Jesus Himself appears to him and, to Nathanael's surprise, tells him exactly where he was before Philip called him. Suddenly, the light bulb came on for Nathanael! The light of Christ overcame the darkness within Nathanael. Nathanael had now seen the Light. Nathanael's infamous words are now replaced by his confession of faith: "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!"

Good things do come out Nazareth in Galilee. Not only does God work out His salvation, but he reveals the Light of the world, from a most unexpected place. Out of Galilee, through the man from Galilee. In addition to this surprise, God also chooses to bring the light of His Son to the most unlikely folks—to Galileans themselves—and through them invites others to partake of the fullness of life in His kingdom. Andrew, Simon Peter, and Philip are from Bethsaida in Galilee. Nathanael is from Cana in Galilee. And the list goes on. A Galilean Savior with His Galilean disciples. How shocking! How surprising! Those people so close to the Gentiles. A people with such a strange accent. Yet it is out of odd and lowly Galilee that the risen Jesus, the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world, sends out His Galilean disciples to bring the world God so loved into the Light, to bring a wayward, erring, and dying world to the One who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life.

Who are the Galileans of our day? Who are the people in our neighborhoods who look and speak differently from us, whose cultural ways confound us? Who are those strange folks, or children of folks, from different tribes, languages, and nations in our midst? Whom do we think, from our narrow human perspective, are the neighbors LEAST likely to benefit from the goodies, from God's surprising news of salvation in Christ? Who do we think, due to our close-minded sinful ways, are the neighbors LEAST likely to receive God's gracious invitation into the life-giving kingdom of His Son?

We too can be like Nathanael, doubtful about what God can do on with neighbors in marginal areas like Galilee, cautiously optimistic about strangers coming into and serving in our churches, guarded about inviting modern-day Galileans to be disciples of Jesus with us for the sake of the world.

When we think in these ways, we are in the dark. We close our hearts to the surprisingly gracious ways in which God reveals His great love for new neighbors, near and far, through His Son. God is merciful, and He surprises us again and again, inviting us to see with the eyes of the Holy Spirit what mighty deeds He can do in the most unlikely places and among the most unlikely characters. He calls us once again to see the Light, wherever He shines, even in Galilee and among Galileans! When we ask ourselves, like Nathanael, "Can anything good come out of these people or those whose language and way of life are so different from ours! Jesus gently sends us a Philip who invites us on His behalf to "come and see" that the Lord can do great things in and out of lowly Galilee.

Through Philip, we are called anew to "come and see" that the love of God in Christ Jesus knows no ethnic, racial, linguistic, tribal, or geographic boundaries. What is the church but a beautiful fellowship of Galileans -- - outsiders? A marginal people called out of darkness into the light of the Son. A people once dead raised to new life through faith in God's Son. Through strangers in our midst, God reminds us that the church is a bunch of strangers in a foreign land. We are in the world, but not of the world.

To the world, WE are complete strangers, speaking with a strange accent and walking to a strange beat. We speak the ancient language of Holy Scripture. We initiate people into the church by sprinkling them with water at our fonts. We eat the body and drink the blood of God's Son at our altars. Our pastors forgive us our sins. We even love our enemies. And we sing and dance to the tune of strange-sounding hymns and songs to worship our Galilean Lord and God. How odd! How surprising! We, too, are strange Galileans.

On this LWML Sunday, we rejoice in Jesus' calling and invitation to come and see once again what He has graciously done in our lives, His great deeds of salvation on behalf of Galileans like us. Today, we also receive with great thanksgiving Jesus' surprising invitation to come and see what He CAN do and IS doing even among really different neighbors in our midst to extend His kingdom throughout the world. We also ask the Lord Jesus to open our eyes to His surprising opportunities for partnership with brothers and sisters in Christ from different ethnic and language groups in the United States and abroad, so that together we might invite even more neighbors to meet Jesus, the man from Galilee, who is Light and Life. Look who found us, and desires to find many more!
