

A Challenge for the New Year

One of the most beautiful things Jesus ever said was, “Do to others as you would have them do to you” (Luke 6:31). Known as The Golden Rule, this statement from Jesus’ Sermon on the Mount embodies the call to love in the most simple terms possible. It also puts the emphasis on a simple “do.”

But wanting to do what’s right and knowing how to do it are two different things. We take issue with the common belief among Christians – the belief that if your heart and soul are in harmony with God, you’ll somehow automatically know just what to do in your marriage. We don’t buy that.

Prospering spiritually does not mean that you know how to do the things that nurture a marriage. For example, do you know how to really listen to your mate, even when tensions are high or you disagree? More important, can you stop an argument before damaging things are said? Do you know how to problem solve as a team, how to work through the process of forgiveness together, how to clarify your deepest expectations, how to enhance and deepen commitment?

These are things you can learn, and when learned well, they can help you develop and keep the kind of marriage you want most. They are ways to put your love in action.

Great marriages take work. Commit in 2017 to take a relationship class or seminar and/or read a good book on relationships together, to date more often, to take time daily to share a cup of coffee and talk together. Dream and plan for future fun together. Go for the gusto!
