

Reasons to Praise Your Spouse

Praise is an essential ingredient to a healthy, happy marriage. Building one another up on a daily basis is a surefire way to build intimacy and keep your love alive for years to come.

Here are 3 reasons why praise is so critical to your marriage.

1. PRAISE MAKES US FEEL LOVED

It feels good to be praised—especially when that praise is coming from the most important person in our life. When our spouses praise us, it brightens our day. We feel cherished and special. Most importantly, we feel loved—and we feel motivated to repay that praise. That's a good cycle to put into motion.

2. PRAISE RAISES OUR CONFIDENCE LEVEL

When we're fed a steady diet of praise and encouragement, we naturally become more confident in our own abilities and attributes. Consistent praise could mean the difference between your spouse achieving his or her goals, or falling short. Praising your spouse (or receiving praise from them) can take a bad day and turn it on its head.

3. PRAISE CREATES A UNITED FRONT

This benefit to praise in marriage is twofold:

1. Praise unifies you from within your marriage
2. Praise unifies your marriage from the outside in

When you're spending your time and energy finding good things to say to one another, then vocalizing them, you're building goodwill in your marriage. Praise solidifies the love you have for each other and brings the two of you closer. And the time and energy spent on praise means you won't have the time to tear one another down.

If you haven't been taking the time to praise one another, the best time to begin is now. We've seen praise do powerful things in marriage; we're confident it can pay dividends in yours, as well.
