Holiday story

The cross that was saved....

By Kelly Harmon

Gordon Ebersole of Bowie, gets frustrated sometimes because the world isn't more self sufficient.

When the 15-foot tall cross had to be removed from the roof of the Christian Community Presbyterian Church at 3120 Belair Rd. and was going to be discarded because of how costly it would be to re-erect it, the 80-year-old Ebersole stepped in.

After a contractor had estimated it could be expensive to erect the angle-iron, I-beam cross in the memorial garden of the church, church members voted to get rid of it because of the expense involved, Ebersole said.

"I guess the contractor was somewhat realistic," Ebersole added, a little grudgingly. "He was going to bring in a crane."

The cross weighs more than two hundred pounds and required three men to lift it to the memorial garden. Ebersole used block and tackle and cable to erect the cross in the garden, and cemented it in place — all for the cost of an $8 bag of concrete.

"I only used about two-thirds of the bag of concrete," Ebersole said. "So, it really only cost about

He added, "It wasn't that hard to do."

Since the last congregational meeting, November 18, 1960, sees the completion of work on the replacement of fellows hall's roof and we remain dry. The final fixes are in progress.

At the same congregational meeting, the building committee a reaffirmation of its role to concentrate its primary charge of building.

Progress Report on the Building Program

Four months have passed since construction was begun on our new sanctuary building. Although progress has been significant, much of the work has occurred below ground level and is not apparent. We are pleased that the visible and progress will be seen.

When the gas line was removed, the existing line was resealed below the ground surface and was safe. When the gas line was removed, the gas company is to have a new gas trucking and the new secondary; around considerable difficulty with the gas line, but the gas will begin on October 27. Our aspirat

Our aspirations have always been to provide a place where we would complete our mission of providing a quality education for all our students. We have done this through our ongoing partnership with the C.C.P.C. We have contributed a total of $100,000 to the C.C.P.C. to help them have another step to take!

How could we answer the question of how to get the most out of the new construction market? The answer is simple: by looking at the factors that are most likely to affect the market. In this case, the factors are the same as those that affect the overall economy: interest rates, inflation, and the state of the economy. The construction industry is a very sensitive one, and it is always looking for ways to stay ahead of the curve. The best way to do this is by staying on top of the latest news and trends in the industry. This is why we have created this special report for you. It contains all the information you need to know to make the most of the new construction market. So, what are the factors that are most likely to affect the market? Let's take a look at each one in turn.

How could we answer such a challenge? As I came to the real proportionate giving. The budget in every congregation. Every church has reported their spiritual discipline. And we are so good at determining from these folks in the pew how much to raise for us to run the church. I was pleased when the figures came in. I was pleased when the figures came in.

BUILDING COMMITTEE
PROGRESS REPORT # 7

November 2, 1962

Dear OCTPC Members & Friends,

The rumors are correct, the Building Committee is alive and well and it is back in the swing of the planning for creating the sanctuary. Over the past few months we have been encouraged by the continued rate of pledge fulfillment (Building funds stand at about $409,000) and the potential availability of construction loans.

Within the past month, the committee has taken a series of steps to move the project along as quickly as possible. We submitted several applications to local institutions and found a modest interest. One concern we received in feedback was the high cost per square footage of the sanctuary. We carefully reviewed some comparative data and decided that we would probably do better with a competitive bid. Hence, we have paid off the pre-construction contract ($26,275) with Scott-Lang Construction. They have paid off the pre-construction contract ($26,275) with Scott-Lang Construction. They have transferred all appropriate drawings and documents to the Keras Group, our architects.

At the committee's most recent meeting, Tom Keras, the architect, met with us to review the schedule and Genetech's. First, he will be reconstituting our permit through, a simple re-instatement rather than a re-submittal. He is preparing revisions to the specifications, and incorporating information from Scott Long Construction. This package will be completed by the end of the year and submitted to a select bid list of six to ten general contractors. Decisions would then be made in the early part of February on selecting a general contractor.

Committee and Session, at a joint meeting, received a Little in the consciously traditional exterior hints at the dramatic interiors.

This Sunday's first service in the new sanctuary has been enthusiastically awaited, Koke said.

Already, families are looking forward to the following Sunday, when the first children will be baptized there and there are at least four weddings lined up, she noted.

In addition to the banners, Oct. 1 will be the date of a separate dedication of the sanctuary banners, one of which some 50 churchwomen under the leadership of Patricia Boudreau has been at work.

In addition to McDaniell, OCPV pastor for nine years, who has not only watched the work of building daily but lent his hands to some of the construction, Koke said two other church members have played key roles. They: Building Committee Chairman J. Mather and Thad Ueding, who served as the congregation's liaison with the construction contractor.

When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and said to him, "Zacchaeus, hurry and come down; for I must stay at your house today." So he hurried down and was happy to welcome him. All who saw it began to grumble and said, "He has gone to be the guest of one who is a sinner." Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, "Look, half of my possessions, Lord, I will give to the poor, ... 60
