OF THE WORLD BIBLE WAY FELLOWSHIP

My other

I hope everyone can say, “My Mother” with great love, for the Bible tells us that we should honor her. What does the word honor mean to you? It means that we should be kind to her; love her; obey her; cherish her. Do you remember how Mary was so excited to think that she would have Jesus? Do you remember when Jesus was on the cross how tenderly he asked one of his disciples to take care of his mother? To be a mother and to have a mother’s love is a wonderful thing. Your mother cares for you; she trains you, she takes you to the doctor, she listens to you, she shares your joys and your sorrows. Can you think of other ways your mother shows her love? Since your mother is so kind to you in so many ways, now can you return your love to her? Let me name some ways. Many of us have a mother already in heaven, and all we have left are memories. And then there are mothers whose children are grown and who have children of their own. She is a grandmother, a special mother to you, her grandchildren.

As you look around you and see how other mothers are treated, isn’t it a great feeling to see a mother treated with sincere love? Isn’t it a joy when a mother is respected by her family members? She may not always be right in her thinking or actions, but she still deserves our respect. So it is with grandmothers. Some grandmothers are very young while others are very old. It takes a great deal of understanding to be patient with older people for they sometimes can’t hear, can’t walk as fast or they wear out easily from walks.

One special memory I have of my mother was that she prayed about everything. If I had a toothache, she prayed, if I had a problem, she prayed. She would sit me down and would tenderly talk and listen and always let me feel her love for me. So today when you are close to your mother, show her your love. Tell her how you love. Help her and let her know that you really do love her for many reasons. Aren’t you glad that God made mothers? Happy Mother’s Day, mothers.

LOVES TOO MUCH

An atheist, blaspheming in a public market place, challenged God to show His power by striking him dead within five minutes. The five minutes elapsed, and following the tense delay, the man spoke to his audience, saying, “What did I tell you?” An old lady standing by said, “Sir, have you any children?” “Why?” “Well,” said the lady, “If one of your children handed you a knife and said, ‘kill me, Daddy,’ would you do it?” “Why, no,” replied the astonished man, “I love them too much.” “That is exactly why God did not strike you dead,” said the lady. “He loves you too much.”

A Father's Role

With fatherhood comes the responsibility of being the best provider he can be. A good father will do all in his power to provide adequately for his wife and children. He will be deeply concerned for the future of his children. His desire will be to prepare them for the future by providing educational opportunities and training. To do this, many fathers sacrifice and work overtime. Some even secure additional jobs. A good father will strive to be a worthy example for his children. He will never allow occasions to develop where his children may suspect that he is not being honest. He will be certain that, while he wants to be successful in life, he will not set an example of getting ahead by using questionable methods. He will always be considerate of his children and will not intentionally do anything to embarrass them. He will be big enough to say "I'm sorry" when occasion calls for him to do so. He will always show interest in his children and their work. This may cause him to delay doing something he wants to do. A father who is kind and considerate of his children, who will take time to show interest in them and their activities, is a father who will receive his children's respect without having to demand it. A good father is one who will take time to do things with his children. Often when the father is busy the children and the mother find it necessary to do things alone. No matter what the mother and children do, it is always more enjoyable for them when the father is along. A good father will be a church going father. God has made fathers the head of the family. He is to be the family leader. A loved and respected father will usually be successful in persuading his family to go with him to church, and to develop a personal relationship with God. A good father will be a Christian father. He cannot love his children as he ought to love without loving God. A Christian has benefits. He can pray and ask God for guidance in rearing his children. He can commit his children to God's care knowing that God is faithful to those who serve Him. Therefore, he will be a praying father. He will lead his family in devotions, he will teach his children the importance of prayer. When children observe their father seeking God for guidance and when they detect, through listening to him pray, that he depends upon God to supply his daily needs, they too will learn how to trust God. He will do everything he can to build respect in the hearts of his children for God, for God's house, and for God's work. Happy Father's Day!

A small boy was constantly in trouble with his mother. One day she decided he was ready for a spanking, when he ran off and hid beneath the covers of his bed. She decided to let him stay there until his father came home.

Later the father went to the boy's room and gently raised the sheet.

"Hi, Dad," the boy whispered. "Is she after you too?"
