It also helps determine how we HANDLE STRESS, relate to others, and make healthy choices. Mental health is important at every stage of life, from childhood and adolescence through adulthood.

Practice the 4 A's of stress management

MISS ME, BUT LET ME GO

When I come to the end of the road
And the has set for me,
I want no rites in a gloom filled room
Why cry for a soul set free.

Miss me a little, but not too long
And not with your head bowed low,
Remember the love that we once shared
Miss me, but let me go.

For this a journey
that we must all take
And each must go alone,
It's all a part of the Master's plan
A step on the road to home.

When you are lonely and sick of heart
Go to the friends we know
And bury your sorrows
in doing good deeds
Miss me, but let go.

AVOID

AVOID unnecessary stress

It is not healthy to avoid a stressful situation that needs to be addressed, but you may be surprised by the number of stressors in your life that you can eliminate.

ALTER

ALTER the situation

If you cannot avoid a stressful situation, try to alter it. Often, this involves changing the way you communicate and operate in your daily life.

ADAPT

ADAPT to the stressor

If you cannot change the stressor, change yourself. You can adapt to stressful situations and regain your sense of control by changing your expectations and attitude.

ACCEPT

ACCEPT the things you cannot change

Some sources of stress are unavoidable. You cannot prevent or change stressors such as the death of a loved one, a serious illness, or a national recession. In such cases, the best way to cope with stress is to accept things as they are. Acceptance may be difficult, but in the long run, it is easier than railing against a situation you cannot change.
